

Competition Overview

To expose students to diverse environmental issues, ecosystems, and topography, the Canon Envirothon is hosted by a different state or province each year. In addition to the actual competition, the event also includes social, cultural, and educational activities organized by the Canon Envirothon Host Committee. Conducted over five consecutive days every summer during July or August, the Canon Envirothon is a competition comprising five testing/training stations and an oral presentation component. At the testing stations and the oral presentation, each team's performance is evaluated and scored by individuals with field expertise. At the conclusion of the competition, scores are combined for final ranking and award/prize distribution. CONTINUE OVERVIEW
